Hints and users's comments. About .Q: Laravel 5.4 OneToMany inner join and group by I have three tables Contacts Messages ContactsMessages The ContactsMessages contains a list of Messages from specific Contacts. Each Message has a user_id and a contact_id. In the above database structure, we have about 3000 contacts, each can have 1 - 100 messages. I need to get a list of all contacts, with their messages. The query below works fine. $messages = DB::table('contacts_messages as cm') ->join('messages as m','m.user_id', '=', 'cm.user_id') ->where('cm.contact_id', '=', Auth::user()->id) ->groupBy('cm.contact_id') ->get(); The problem is, that the ContactsMessages table contains only 1 to 1 relation to the Contacts and Messages table. The list of all messages for a specific contact is very long. I am wondering if there is a way to group only by the user_id of the messages table, and somehow return only a list of the messages with their contacts. I am trying with: `DB::table('contacts_messages as cm') ->join('messages as m','m.user_id', '=', 'cm.user_id')`
